Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

Times Don't Change much where the president and the congress are concerned. Franklin D. Roosevelt, a Democrat, proposes like his Republican predecessors to veto a soldiers' bonus bill which the congress has just passed—and yet, strangely enough, if Roosevelt vetoes the Patman bill it will be for reasons almost exactly opposite those given by the Republican presidents.

Navy Censorship Keeps Silence on Pacific Air Fleet

No Word From 46 Seaplanes Between Hawaii and Midway Isles

THE GAME OF WAR

U. S. Battle Fleet Engaged in Maneuvers in Middle of Pacific

HONOLULU, H. I.—(AP)—In grim, war-like fashion the Navy clamped down a censorship Friday on all communication sources to hide the whereabouts of its 46 seaplanes.

The planes, participating in the gigantic 1935 war games of the United States fleet, roared away from Pearl Harbor base Thursday for the Midway Islands, on the sea road to China.

On Their Way

HONOLULU, H. I.—(AP)—The American navy's secret move across the Pacific with an unprecedented 46-plane mass flight from Honolulu to Midway Island got under way here Thursday.

The 46 seaplanes, including the fleet's fleet, were en route to the Midway Islands, on the sea road to China.

Soon after the planes had taken off here in a spectacular formation maneuver, J. F. Voorhees, government meteorologist, said heavy rain was falling and a 24-mile wind blowing at Midway Island, 1,323 miles distant.

Voorhees said there was a possibility of increasing storminess in the area. He suggested the air armada, greatest of its kind ever assembled, could stop at French Frigate shoals, 500 miles northwest of here, or at Pearl and Hermes reef, 100 miles short of the fleet's destination.

Flight officers had noted the possibility of a storm in the area of Midway before the takeoff.

Two hours for Take-off

It took one minute less than two hours for the heavily loaded aircraft, bearing some 200 officers and men, to get into the air. Then, like ships of the fleet, the powerful planes lined up in squadrons and streaked away on an unbroken trail.

Somewhere in the great triangle between the American mainland, Alaska and Hawaii, the United States fleet guided the armada by radio. The planes were on "routine duty" and their movement played some undisclosed part in the widely discussed Pacific fleet operations. Extreme secrecy surrounded the preparations and departure. Without a single hitch the planes climbed from Pearl Harbor at intervals of three or four minutes.

It was learned the group expected to reach the little island in 10 or 11 hours, that the planes would remain south to figure in other ambitious aerial operations for at sea, possibly including flights between this area and the Aleutian Islands of Alaska, 1,700 miles distant.

Big Planes Rise First

First into the air and leading the armada was the noted squadron VP-10, of six long-range planes, which in January, 1934, made the navy's first mass precision flight from Oakland, Calif. to Pearl Harbor, 2,400 miles.

Squadrons of smaller planes followed.

Senate Poll Shows Upper House Will Sustain Patman Bill Veto

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The White House was deluged Friday with telegrams urging the president either to sign or veto the Patman cash bonus bill.

Meanwhile, Roosevelt prepared to veto the bill soon after it reaches him from the senate, where bonus leaders are trying to marshal every ounce of strength to save the measure from defeat.

mean that the president would insist upon new taxes should congress override the veto.

Veterans Make Appeal

WASHINGTON—(AP)—An apparent inevitable clash between congress and the White House over the $2,000,000,000 new money bonus bill Thursday night found both camps seeking to strengthen their positions.

President Roosevelt prepared to veto the inflationary Patman bill, even though he has not yet received it from congress.

Patman bill leaders on Capitol Hill sparred for time. After private senate polls indicated that a veto would be sustained, possibly by as many as five or six votes, they looked the measure up until next week. Hastily they sought, first, to rally votes directly to override a veto, and simultaneously, to call down a shower of telegrams on the capital in support of their cause.

Congressional supporters of the inflationary measure, meanwhile, rejected non-presidential proposals for a compromise and decided to stand or fall with the bill approved by the Senate Tuesday. They announced, however, they would hold up action on it until next week.

The Patmanites carried their battle to the country. James E. Van Zandt, commander-in-chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, announced a public appeal to the people to telegraph President Roosevelt asking him to sign the bill. He set 1,000,000 telegrams as his goal in the unprecedented campaign.

Frank N. Balgarno, national commander of the American Legion, also sent telegrams to Legion leaders in all states suggesting that they "wire the president not to veto and wire your congressmen and senators if bill is vetoed to vote to override the veto."

In his message, the chief executive was expected to say his supporters to vote congress sharply again that passage of a bonus measure at this time would require new taxation. Secretary Morgenthau has outlined an inheritance tax program to raise from $300,000,000 to $600,000,000 annually in case a bonus measure should be passed.

Lige Dame Gives Up After Escape

Youthful Arson Suspect Pleads Guilty in Circuit Court

POCAHONTAS, Ark.—(AP)—Ranch county officers announced Friday the surrender of Lige Dame, Jr., 24 hours after he had crawled to freedom through the county jail wall where he was held on accessory-to-arson charges in the Randolph hotel fire here.

Dame said he had been hiding in underbrush near here without food since his escape.

Later, Dame pleaded guilty in circuit court to a charge of burglary in connection with the burning of the Randolph hotel and was given a five-year sentence.

Judge Bledsoe specified that he send the first year in the Boys' Industrial School and the remainder of the term at the state penitentiary.

Negro Used Hatchet, White Man Got Gun, Latter Tells Investigators

Haywood Logan, 22, negro, was shot and fatally wounded late Thursday afternoon by Hiram Hembree, farmer residing nine miles northeast of Hope. The shooting occurred near Hembree's home.

Dr. J. H. Weaver, Hempstead coroner, held an inquest Friday morning and announced that the coroner's jury had exonerated Hembree. The jury found that Hembree acted in self-defense, Dr. Weaver said.

The negro had been employed on the Hembree farm about three years. A short time ago difficulties arose over the abuse of a mule. About 5 p. m. Thursday the question arose again.

Testimony before the jury showed that the negro cursed Hembree and then attempted to attack him with a hatchet. Hembree obtained his shotgun and fired twice. The first load struck the negro in the heart. The second took effect in the left hip, killing him instantly.

Hembree was quoted as saying that the negro had threatened his (Hembree's) life on previous occasions. Facing four jail, Hembree told the coroner's jury that he had slept but little during the past three nights.

Hospital Employee, Drunk, Discharged

Dr. A. C. Kolb "Fires" State Worker Arrested at Fort Smith

LITTLE ROCK—Supt. A. C. Kolb of the State Hospital for Nervous Diseases announced Thursday that A. B. Bowden had been discharged as a result of his arrest at Fort Smith, where he was sent to return a patient.

Dr. Kolb said Bowden's services with the hospital terminated Thursday and that the institution would have no interest in the outcome of his scheduled trial at Fort Smith on charges of driving while drunk.

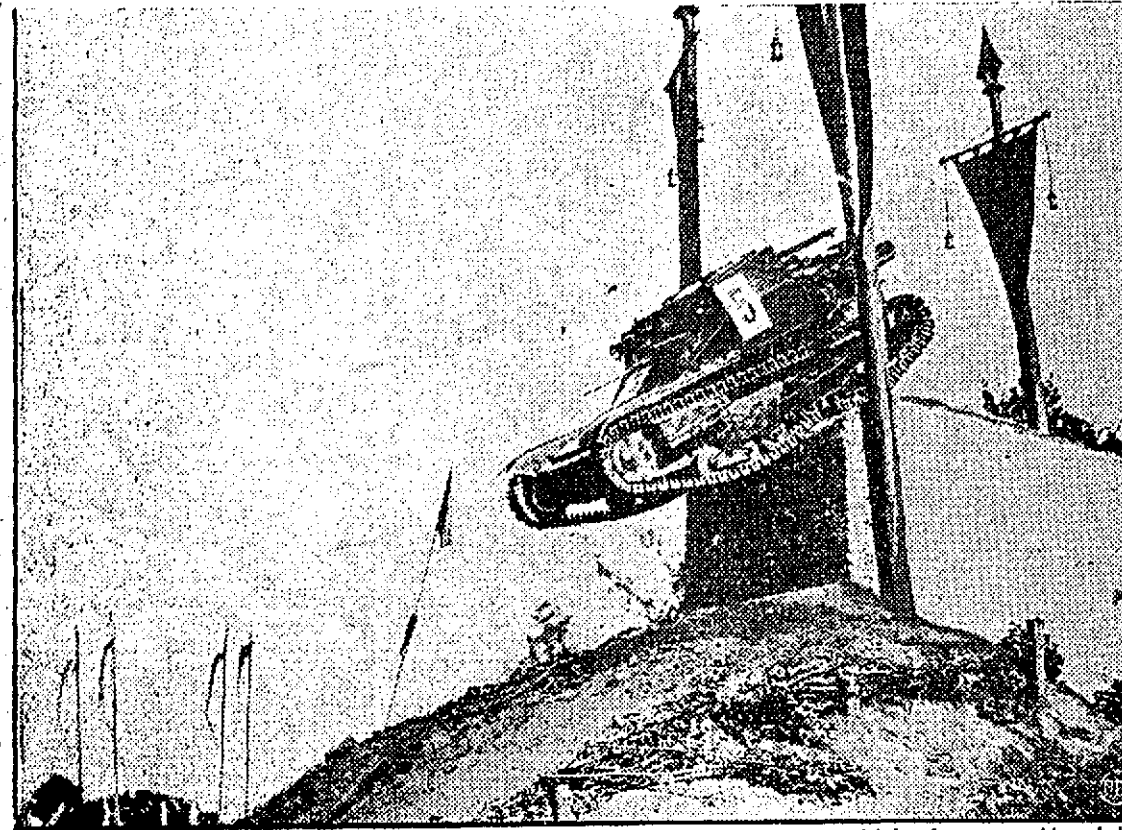

"When a man betrays a trust on duty we are not interested in the outcome of the case," said Dr. Kolb, who announced that another employee had been sent to Fort Smith to return the patient he described as E. S. Overton, who escaped from the hospital about a month ago and was caught at McAlester, Okla.

Bowden was en route here with the patient when his arrest was made following an accident. Dr. Kolb said he had been employed by the hospital for several years and that his record had been good and he was a trusted employee, being sent after patients a number of times.

Dr. Kolb expressed his regret at the incident and ordered prompt discharge of Bowden.

Democrats Decide 9 Months for NRA

Senate Group in Conflict, However, With House and President

WASHINGTON—(AP)—In an effort to wind up the congressional session by early June the senate Democrats in conference Friday decided to stand by the finance committee's proposal to extend the NRA until April 1 next year.

House leaders are understood to approve the two-year extension which has been requested by the administration.

It looks like a contest will develop in the attempt to reconcile these divergent views.

The congressional battle over the house-approved omnibus banking bill shifted to the senate Friday with Senator S. E. Eccles, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, testifying that public control of national credit and monetary policies is essential to promote recovery.

5 Months or 2 Years

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Plans for drastic revision of NRA to conform with expected congressional action were disclosed Thursday by Donald R. Richberg.

Only those industries indisputably or directly affecting interstate commerce would be coded under the new program. Complaints against far trade practices in many codes would be referred to the Federal Trade Commission.

Powers of some code authorities were due for curtailment. Enforcement methods would be changed.

Meantime, Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, decided to ask senate Democrats at a party conference Friday whether they wanted NRA extended two years or just nine months.

A finance committee resolution called for a nine-month extension but house ways and means committee Democrats had virtually agreed with the administration to insist upon a two-year bill. The finance committee plan also would exempt all interstate businesses from code regulation and outlaw price-fixing.

The senate NRA measure was blocked behind a filibuster on the Norris Tennessee valley bill, and Richberg foresaw the possibility of delay in enactment until early next month.

Bank Measure to Senate

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Extraordinary new federal powers over money and credit were voted Thursday by the house in speeding the administration's omnibus bill to uncertain senate reception.

The 271-to-110 vote on final passage wrote a half-congress approval on the 91-page bill endorsed by Gov. Franklin S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, designed to extend vastly the board's powers.

But while strengthening centralized authority, the representatives brushed aside proposals to go further in the same direction—one for unifying the banking system; the other to make a government-owned and controlled central bank out of the 12 Federal Reserve banks.

All of the Arkansas congressmen voted in favor of the bank bill except Driver, who was not listed as voting. Despite the overwhelming house vote, the senate is expected to delay action.

Red River Lapping Top of Levee for Stretch 3 Miles

Embankment South of Sampson's Farm, Below Fulton, Is Endangered

350 MEN ON LEVEE

Bulkhead Goes Out on Little River, Flooding Orton, Temple Farms

The rampaging Red river became more alarming Friday with new threats of levee breaks from Sampson's farm, four miles south of Fulton, as far down as Garland City.

The river rose another foot during the past 24 hours and at noon Friday the reading at Fulton toll bridge was 33.6, and was reported still rising. It was raining in Hope Friday afternoon, and the week-end forecast was for continued threatening weather.

A forecast of 34 feet is predicted by Saturday. Flood stage at Fulton is 25 feet.

350 Men on Levee

Approximately 350 men including 150 relief workers from Hope were strung at intervals from Fulton several miles south. The levee from Fulton to Sampson's farm, four miles south of the toll bridge, was reported Friday to be in "fair shape."

From Sampson's farm for a stretch of three miles the water is at the top of the levee. In some places water had overflowed banks. Relief workers were holding back flood waters in many places by "sacking" the levee.

A new break under the levee at Sampson's farm occurred Friday morning, but was caught and repaired by alert relief workers. At that point the levee was holding Friday afternoon.

Flood waters poured over the banks at Ferguson Bend, inundating hundreds of acres of bottom land of the Rankin, Reed and Old Battle farms.

It was reported that a Little River bulkhead had broken through on the H. H. Orton farm in Little River county early Friday, flooding approximately 700 acres of land on the Orton farm and nearly 2,000 acres on the Temple plantation.

5,000 Acres Flooded

At the lower end of the levee district, 11 miles south of the bridge, water had covered approximately 5,000 acres of Hope plantation, and Farmers in that section, it was reported, had evacuated their homes for higher ground. No livestock was reported lost.

Fifty FERA workers were dispatched from Hope Friday morning to Dooley's Ferry where it was reported that flood waters were overflowing farm land.

Relief workers from Texarkana were dispatched to Garland City where toll bridge officials there said water had overflowed the river banks about 200 yards below the span in Miller county. One hundred acres was conservatively estimated as being effected by the menacing waters.

McNab Road Flooded

It was said from Fulton Friday that an additional two feet would put the river over the levee there. The Fulton-McNab gravel road was under a foot and a half of water for a stretch of 150 yards. Back waters are overflowing the road in other places.

At the stretch where the water was reported 18 inches deep, the Highway department has staked the road. Two men are stationed at each end of the stretch to direct traffic. With an additional rise of only a few inches the road will be impassable by automobile.

Masonic Meeting

J. B. Bunn, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Arkansas will make his official visit with Whitfield Lodge No. 229 F. & A. M. Friday night. He will be accompanied by Grand Secretary, W. A. Thomas. A master's degree will also be conferred. All Masons are urged to be present at 7:30 o'clock.

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—(AP)—Police Chief Callagher and Special Officer Gray killed a rabid cow here Thursday. Officers said rabies had caused the deaths of nearly 100 dogs in Pine Bluff and vicinity recently.

Markets

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Marking time after Thursday's advance, opening prices on the cotton market Friday held in a narrow range, a point or two under the previous closing levels.

At the first call May sold at 11.88, July at 11.90, October at 11.69 and December at 11.74, and held at these figures during the early dealings.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 1 higher to 3 lower with trade buying offset by liquidation and foreign selling. May 11.94; July 11.96; October 11.73; December 11.78; January 11.84; March 11.90.

Trading was slow and a fair part of it consisted of further liquidation of old crop positions against purchases of the new at narrowing differences which caused moderate declines. July sold off from 11.97 to 11.91 and December from 11.80 to 11.77 with prices about 3 to 7 points net lower at the end of the first half hour.

Liverpool cables were generally steadier.

Baby Deaths Reduced, But Births Drop, Too

In most civilized countries number of deaths of babies in the first year of life has reduced from half to two-thirds, and it seems likely that continued advancement of medical science will still further lower this incidence.

At the same time, however, there is a steadily decreasing birth rate, and as yet there is no sign that this is going to slow up. In fact as the young people who passed through childhood during the lean years of the World War come to the marriageable age, the number of births is likely still further to be lowered.

With a rapidly declining birth rate, control of infant mortality becomes of even greater significance.

Lowest infant mortality rates of the world are those of Australia and New Zealand, where special efforts have been made in the past, and consistently maintained, to control this factor. Rates for the United States compare very favorably with those of other countries of similar size, such as Great Britain and Germany.

Among other factors determined by a recent investigation is the fact that the male infant dies more easily than the female. This has always been so, although no adequate explanation has ever been established.

Only answer given by scientists is the statement that nature has endowed the female organism with greater vitality than the male because it is meant to bring forth the next generation. However, that is a statement of opinion and an established fact. It has also been proved that infant mortality increases when the age of the mother passes a certain limit, and experience has shown that babies born to mothers well along in years are not as likely to survive as those born to mother of a younger period, provided they are not too young.

Illegitimate babies have a much higher death rate than those born legitimately, and figures show that their mortality during the first 24 hours of life is far greater than that of legitimate babies. The reasons for this can readily be surmised.

Factors responsible for deaths of infants during the first year of life are both medical and social. Modern infant welfare work and sanitary improvement have begun to overcome effects of poverty.

Advancement of medical science and spread of information concerning prenatal care are doing much to overcome medical causes of infants deaths.

A BOOK A DAY

Tells Why America Went to War in 1917

"Road To War," by Walter Millis, is probably the best analysis yet printed of the reasons why we went to war in 1917.

It is a melancholy book to read, because it shows so clearly that we could so easily have stayed out, if— but the if is a huge one.

If we had had leaders big enough to tell Allied propaganda before swallowing it; if we had ordered a munitions embargo in 1914; if we had insisted from the start on our right to export non-combatant goods; if we had not unconsciously looked to London as their capital; if President Wilson's policies had been in the hands of men who were a little less subject to the influence of the British; if Theodore Roosevelt had hated Wilson less bitterly; if the British had not controlled the overseas cables . . . and so on, and so on, down a long and sorry list.

Mr. Millis has done a magnificent job of showing how we grew biased, so that one became a "hyphenate," if one spoke for the Allies. And I wish everyone would observe the way in which he removes the distinguished hide of Ambassador Walter Hines Page, who suffered in just that way, and drapes it over the woodpile.

Wilson, naturally, is the central figure of the book; a man beset by infinite difficulties, who went to war knowing it to be a catastrophe, the most tragic figure of an infinitely tragic era, hamstrung by forces he could never quite surmount—although he tried valiantly.

If you have any interest in seeing your country stay out of the next war, read this book and learn how we got into the last one. Published by Houghton-Mifflin, the book sells for $3.

Daylight Saving Upsets Sleep Schedule

Daylight saving time may be disliked by the farmers, but if we knew the truth, its big army of enemies are the mothers of the land. "What are we to do?" they wail, "when it is still broad daylight at ten o'clock? It had enough to put Johnny to bed at seven and have him lie awake at nine, but when it is broad day until all hours and the street noises keep up, he turns and tosses and cries because he can't go to sleep. It is a perfect nightmare for everybody."

Those who have been through it know, and I am one suffering mother. Yet there is the sleep-schedule facing us. The sleep quota for all good little babies and girls and boys runs something like this:

First 3 months—18 to 20 hours a day.
3 months to 1 year—16 to 18 hours.
1 to 2 years—14 to 16 hours.
2 to 3 years—13 to 15 hours.
3 to 4 years—12 to 14 hours.
4 to 5 years—11 to 13 hours.
5 to 6 years—11 to 12 hours.
6 to 12 years—11 hours.

So what? If Susy and Joe won't or can't go to sleep before ten, and get up at seven, where are they to pick up the dividend on slumber?

Two Short Naps Help
Small children not in school and those in kindergarten with short hours can have long afternoon naps to compensate for night shortage. Or preferably, two briefer naps morning and afternoon.

Pupils in school can make up needed rest also this way after school is out for the year. But there are still two months to go as far as large city schools are concerned. And they are strenuous, these months. What with outdoor life and June ahead—June, the hardest month of the year for many of us because it is the windup of everything, and examination time as well.

More children get "run down" in June than any other time. Watch irritability and misbehavior and loss of appetite. They all tell the tale. Too much to do, too little sleep and no appetite.

Later Bedtime Urged
The answer seems to be to move the bedtime forward one hour toward dark. Better to sleep when they do turn in than to toss and get past sleep. Give them another half hour in the morning if possible. And after school in the afternoon make them lie down for an hour, even though they do not sleep.

Rest, even under protest (and be sure they will yell and kick up a rumpus), is rest just the same. Keep the room dark and quiet and cool. See that they take off their shoes. No reading, no play.

They make up that extra hour after supper anyway, so they can afford to go out of circulation from four to five. After a week or two they may learn to drop off for a cat nap. So much to the good, then.

NO GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II

ZOE PARKER sat at the breakfast table in the new pseudo-Spanish house her parents had built on the very tip-end of Indian Point. A wall built of blue stucco and studded at intervals with ornamental colored tiles bounded their grounds. There was a yacht landing and a pier, and several small boats floated at anchor at the foot of the steps. Zoe, wearing shorts and a middie-like white blouse which made her look like a very small girl, drank iced orange juice from a glass decorated with lilies of the valley. The glass stood in the center of a bowl of the same delicate make. There were sheer linen mats, the texture of cobwebs, on the old oaken table. The maid who served Zoe was in pale yellow, with a musical comedy apron. Everything Mrs. Parker did or touched had this faintly unreal, theatrical air.

Henry Parker had made his money in automobile tires and Lisa Parker knew how to spend it. The one concern of this pair at the moment was their daughter. Zoe had been born to them late in life—Lisa had been 38 when Zoe's first faint scream was heard above the other hospital noises—and now Zoe, at 20, was everything lovely, but she was a silly little thing. Even Lisa acknowledged it. Lisa, who had cooked and scrubbed and washed dishes for 10 years in a little flat in Detroit before Henry came into the money, had a fund of "good, hard common sense." She said so herself. Zoe was frivolous as the wind, or as a butterfly set free over a bed of ageratum. And Zoe's mania at the moment was Gibbs Larkin, who was 35 and who had been correspondent in at least two divorce cases.

Lisa Parker told herself comfortably, coming into the breakfast room which fairly glittered with sunshine, that Zoe had probably "got all over that." Lisa wasn't absolutely sure, but she hoped for the best. Hadn't that nice young man on the boat—the Princeton boy—made a terrific fuss about Zoe? Never called her anything but "Beautiful" all the live-long day. And had sent flowers twice since they'd been back.

THUS Lisa Parker's thoughts on this fine morning. "The storm," she said, casually, to her daughter, "just about ruined my delphiniums."

Zoe lifted a transparent cup and drank her coffee.

"Terrible!" she said affably. "Wasn't it funny, Zoe mused, how older women were about gardening? Herself, she simply couldn't imagine fussing about anything so unimportant. She folded back the newspaper before her to the social notes. Her heart turned over—once—twice. It glugged, Zoe folded back the newspaper to the social notes. Her heart turned over—once—twice—at what she read.

and then righted itself again. "Mr. Gibbs Larkin is at the Pequot House at White Bay and will shortly depart with friends on a yachting party for Nova Scotia."

So that was it. Would a note to the Pequot House—air mail—reach him in time? Gibbs—Gibbs, darling, didn't anyone tell you I was back? Didn't you get my note?

"Will you have more coffee, Miss Zoe?" asked the black-haired maid, Gerda, at her elbow.

"No, I think not, Gerda, thank you."

"Tell cook to order some more of that gluten bread," Mrs. Parker said. "And tell her to come to me in the morning room right after I have my manicure. We're having a dinner party to-morrow night. I've got to see to everything."

She grumbled delightedly, once the maid had vanished behind the swinging door.

"Who's coming?"

"Oh, the Strykhursts and the Juliens, and Captain Byrne and his fiancée. Two or three other people—I forget—your father has the list."

"Do I show up?"

"You certainly do!" Mrs. Parker made her eyes very round. She was a plump, well-favored woman with a nice color and cheerful blue eyes behind nose glasses.

"Had I having Mr. Cotaine from the office—very nice Englishman, rubber expert, to take you in," Mrs. Parker went on. "Son of a lord, Dad says."

ZOE made a not altogether complimentary sound with her pretty lips.

"Naughty girl," cooed Mrs. Parker. "What else did you have in mind?"

"There's a dance at the club," Zoe pouted. "Frank Corliss was coming out for it."

"The Princeton boy?" Lisa Parker beamed.

"The very one."

"Well," pondered Lisa Parker

happily. "Dad can arrange that. We'll all go over to the club later, then. Wouldn't you like to ask Frank to dinner, too? Perhaps I can get Katharine Strykhurst. That will make the table just right . . ."

"No, don't," Zoe said hastily. "He's dining with some people from Scarsdale. The Williamses—Williamses—something like that. He just said he'd see me there." It wouldn't do to get Mother too excited about Frank Corliss. She'd be having them engaged before you knew it.

"Oh, very well, then. It's all settled," Mrs. Parker was perfectly happy this morning.

Zoe ran out of the house and around to the garage. Waters was polishing the car in which her father drove to town every morning.

"My car all right?"

The little chauffeur came around to the side of Zoe's roadster. "It was the gearshift lever sticking, miss. I fixed it."

"Thanks," she climbed in, with a flash of brown legs. Good thing Mother didn't see her start off in shorts. Mother was old-fashioned about such things. Oh, well, she wasn't going to get out and parade around Main Street in them, although some of the cottagers did that, buying their vegetables and groceries. Zoe wrinkled up her nose at the thought . . .

Katharine wasn't in the maid at the Strykhursts said. She would be back from the riding club in half an hour.

"Riding every day, b'm?" Zoe muttered, backing the little car and wheeling it about.

Zoe decided to go out to Shady Ridge and see if she could pick up Katharine. They hadn't had a chance to talk the other day, with all that crowd around the club. And yesterday had been stormy and Katharine had called to say she didn't feel well. Had a headache or something. As if it weren't an unheard-of thing for Katharine to say she was ill.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Comfortable Permanents

Permanent waves, thanks to inventors of machinery as well as to the nimble fingers of our foremost operators, are more intriguing than ever this spring. Once she sees demonstrations of some of the 1935 types of permanents, no straight-haired woman will be happy without one.

There is, for instance, a new machine—called a self-winder—that eliminates any chance of irregularity in a wave. After being tied to the end of a rod, each section of hair is wound quickly and painlessly by the machine.

Some may argue that such a mechanical process will tend to make all waved heads look alike, thereby eliminating originality in hair styles. However, the argument can be shelved at once when you point out that even a machine like this has to be handled by an experienced and artistic operator. He will know that the machine can be regulated according to the kind of hair to be waved. On him, as is true of all permanents, depends the success of your wave.

There's a new permanent machine, too. It curls hair softly and gives a wave that looks loose but which will stay in the usual five or six months. The metal cylinders that slip down over the rods wound with hair are lighter than the ones on older machines. Therefore, while the heat is being applied, there's much less weight on your head. As a matter of fact, there's no strain at all on your neck and you can read a magazine or just sit and enjoy yourself.

It's an excellent idea to investigate some of these new processes before you make an appointment for your new spring wave. However, look around in reliable shops, of course, and insist on an operator who has had years of permanent-waving experience.

Next: Preparation for new permanent.

Each lovely unexpected thing I see
Along the highway of common day
Wakes in my heart a singing melody
Which travels with me all the weary way.
Sometimes it is a clump of blossoms,
Wild and sweet
Which lift pure faces from the grass,
Sometimes when children run with eager feet,
My own youth quickens, just to see them pass.
No day so gray, but some bright golden gleam
Brightens to sudden radiance, and I see
In a dream—
The tender grace of God's divinity.

Hope, Ark.

Grone, of Hope, district president; the president of the visiting clubs, Mrs. J. C. Carlton of Hope, and the president of the Haynesville Music club, all of whom responded with short talks. Miss Jewell Steve the newly elected president of the Magnolia club was introduced and presided. The program opened with a very delightful cantata entitled "Spring," directed by Mrs. Green, Choral director of the Magnolia club, with Miss Maude Crumpler, accompanying. Following the cantata a piano ensemble including eight performers was presented by Miss Crumpler, who is state chairman of public school music. The appreciative audience composed of local music lovers, representatives from Camden, El Dorado, Haynesville, Arkadelphia and Hope, responded most freely to this delightful program and recognized the occasion as only the beginning of a cooperation that would bring about a pleasant and helpful fellowship among the clubs in the district. Following the program an informal reception was held at which time, a most tempting sandwich course was served with fruit punch and cookies. Attending from Hope were Mrs. J. C. Carlton, Mrs. Fred R. Harrison, Mrs. J. O. Milam, Mrs. Dick Watkins, Misses Mary Louise Keith and Harriet Story, Mrs. R. M. LaGrone, Mrs. R. T. White and Mrs. Sid Henry.

As special compliment to Mrs. Warren Bayse, who was Miss Wilma Jacks until her recent marriage, Mrs. Douglas Bacon and Miss Clara Wilson, entertained at a miscellaneous shower on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Bacon on South Washington street. The rooms were elaborately decorated with pink radiance roses, emphasizing the pleasing color note of pink and green, which was still further observed in the refreshments. The honoree was seated in a chair decorated with a large bow of maline, and a beautifully decorated box of gifts was placed before her. In the games and contests enjoyed throughout the evening, Miss Lorraine Whitehurst won the favor.

As a further contribution in the observance of National Music week, the Friday Music club and the Junior Music club, with Mrs. F. L. Padgett, chairman and Mrs. John Wellborn director, on Thursday evening at the city auditorium presented the winners in the Literary meet recently held in Lewisville. Accompanists were Mrs. Wellborn, Misses Margery Byers, Harriet Story and Regina Bayse. This splendid program was of especial interest to parents and all music lovers, the numbers were beautifully rendered and certainly reflects credit on the performers, their director and sponsors. The numbers by the Glee club were especially pleasing, and those rendered by Miss Regina Bayse, violinist, and J. T. Luck, pianist, showed unusual talent and training and gave the audience ample opportunity of testing their musical ability from every standpoint. The outstanding feature of the program was the chorus "Swing Low Sweet Chariot" rendered with true interpretive spirit by a group of 70 voices. Mrs. J. C. Carlton as president of the Friday Music club, gave a short talk "On What National Music Week May Mean to Us." Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. R. M. LaGrone, the Friday Music Club will present a program of American Composers, closing a week's activities in observance of National Music Week.

Mrs. C. C. Collins entertained on Wednesday afternoon at her home on Fulton street, in celebration of her little daughter, Bettie Joe's fifth birthday anniversary. The dining table was covered with an angel food cake, topped with five glowing candles and following a number of games, the birthday cake was cut and served with ice cream to the members of Bettie Joe's Sunday school class and a few special friends. The little housewife received a number of lovely gifts.

Early Communion will be observed at 7:30 Sunday morning at St. Mark's Episcopal church followed by church services at 11 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Scoggins, who have been at the bedside of their little son, Bobby Ward, who recently underwent an appendicitis operation at the Josephine hospital, left this morning for their home in Texarkana. Bobby was able to accompany his parents home.

A meeting is called for the Church Lowthorp chapter, C. of C. at 2 o'clock, Saturday afternoon at the home of their sponsor, Mrs. R. T. White on North Washington street.

ud. The planes in the air circled the naval base in an ever-growing swarm until the last one had gained its position. Quickly they tore away to the west.

Some of the 153 surface ships of the fleet were in the vicinity of the air fleet and expected to keep track of the operations and stand by for any possible casualty.

The air armada began preparations only Wednesday, when commanders glanced at weather reports and learned conditions would be generally bad, but that a storm center was forming 1,500 miles northwest of Midway and might turn southward.

In many ways the undertaking shown the spectacular achievement of General Italo Balbo and his Italian squadron of 21 planes which crossed the Atlantic from Italy to Chicago in 1933.

The American undertaking besides involving almost twice as many planes as Balbo had, required fine points of navigation to reach Midway without error, and called for a single mass flight.

Banker Is Opposed to Federal Plan

"Political Domination"
Played by Louisianan at Fort Smith

PORT SMITH, Ark.—(AP)—Although declaring his remarks were not to be construed as opposition to President Roosevelt's full recovery program, Rudolf S. Hecht, New Orleans president of the American Bankers association, warned Arkansas bankers Thursday against "continued political domination" of banking and other private business.

Speaking before the opening session of the 45th annual convention of the Arkansas Bankers Association, Hecht told the 200 convention delegates that enactment of Title Two of the administration's banking law would "sound the death knell of private banking in this country."

Hecht directed a caustic attack at the portion of the banking law known as Title Two, which would make basic changes in the Federal Reserve System.

He criticized some advisers of the president and congressmen, who, he said, "think the Federal Reserve System should be abandoned and superseded by a government-controlled and owned bank."

"No one will deny that certain defects in our existing laws need correction, and all of us are anxious to prevent future mistakes and abuses which our hindsight has conclusively proven were possible under the old laws," Hecht declared.

"We still believe that the best results can be accomplished by adjustment of present laws by gradual adjustment of our present banking system, suitably supervised by proper authority, rather than by sudden impulses to change fundamental principles. We also are of the opinion that the future welfare of the nation will be better served by a gradual adjustment of our present banking system, suitably supervised by proper authority, rather than by sudden impulses to change fundamental principles."

"The banking act of 1933 has gone far in correcting some of the shortcomings which have developed in 2 years of administration of the Federal Reserve act. It would go too far if we now enacted further legislation which could bring about political control of the economic freedom of business," Hecht declared.

especially its Federal Reserve sections—was forecast in the Senate. Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, has started banking subcommittee hearings on the measure and Friday Hecht will be heard. Senate leaders believe it will be several weeks before floor consideration begins.

Two days of heated debate over amendments preceded the final House ballot on the legislation which makes permanent the present temporary deposit insurance system, extends Reserve Board control over open market operations in government securities, and empowers the board to vary the reserves member banks must maintain against deposits to "prevent injurious credit expansion or contraction."

Existing law requires that all state banks must belong to the Federal Reserve System by July 1, 1937, in order to get federal deposit insurance. The banking committee, in the bill presented to the house and passed Thursday, decided to eliminate that requirement although it had the approval of Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Deposit Insurance Corporation, and other high officials.

O. K., Then

The young man who had been calling on Helen came at last to see her father. Finally, the father made this announcement: "It's a mere formality, I know, but we thought it would be pleasing to you if it were observed in the usual way."

Helen's father stiffened. "And may I inquire," he asked, "who suggested that asking my consent to Helen's marriage was a mere formality?"

"Yes," replied the young man. "It was Helen's mother."—Arcanum Bulletin.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Text: Acts 2:41-45; Ephesians 4:1-7, 11-16.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for May 12.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.

Editor of Advance

Out of faith and experience comes fellowship. Such was the origin of the Christian Church, and such has been the origin of every new movement and organization in the history of the Church.

Sometimes the faith and the experience are narrow, and the resulting movement and fellowship are sectional or sectarian. This, also, has been the history of the Christian Church.

But in the beginning the Church arose out of a very definite experience of repentance and salvation. Those who strive with sincerity and earnestness to live according to the teachings of Jesus and who seek through the fellowship of the Church to lighten the world with righteousness, love, and truth.

What real hope is there for the world apart from that?

The Church consisted of small groups of those who had found the new experience of salvation and life in Christ Jesus. These groups met in a measure of seclusion, with the threat of persecution constantly upon them.

One can hardly think of anyone joining the Church in those days except from strong conviction and because the Church represented a fellowship in something more precious than anything that the world offered. The marvel is that even under these conditions the members of this early church were not always ideal.

We need only read Paul's epistles to see how even in this primitive church, where everything connected with it seemed to involve sacrifice, there were those whose lives were not proof against vice and whose spirits were not free from narrowness.

But here in our lesson, in the record of the first gathering and fellowship, we have the revelation of an ideal and practice so glorious that there seems little hope of humanity rising to it. So seriously did these early Christians take the words of Jesus concerning brotherly love and the surrender of all to God, that they were willing to disregard their personal possessions, to have all things in common, and even to sell what they had so that any man who needed might be supplied.

If one could find that quality of Christian character and Christian courage more widely exemplified, the solution of life's problems would be easy, particularly in an age when we have discovered that man's conquest of nature is able to provide an abundance of all that is necessary for human life and far beyond man's need.

To imagine, however, that such a state of society could be organized out of a world of unregenerate men, whose hearts and habits are dominated by self-interest, is to trust to a vain delusion.

Take It or Leave It

The daughter of the house, writes a Sandusky reader, was talking over the problem of what to serve her bridge-circles, a group of girls with finicky appetites.

One girl disliked salads, one refused sweets, another never ate fruit and still another shunned meat.

'Well,' her disgusted younger brother put in, 'about the only think left for that bunch is a good chaw of tobacco.'—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PRESENTING THE WORLD-FAMOUS DIONNE QUINTUPLETS IN THEIR FIRST STAGE APPEARANCE

The Mystery of the Necklace

DRAMATIS PERSONALE: YVONNE, a quintuplet; CECILE, her sister.

SCENE: A table-top in the nursery at Callander, Ont.

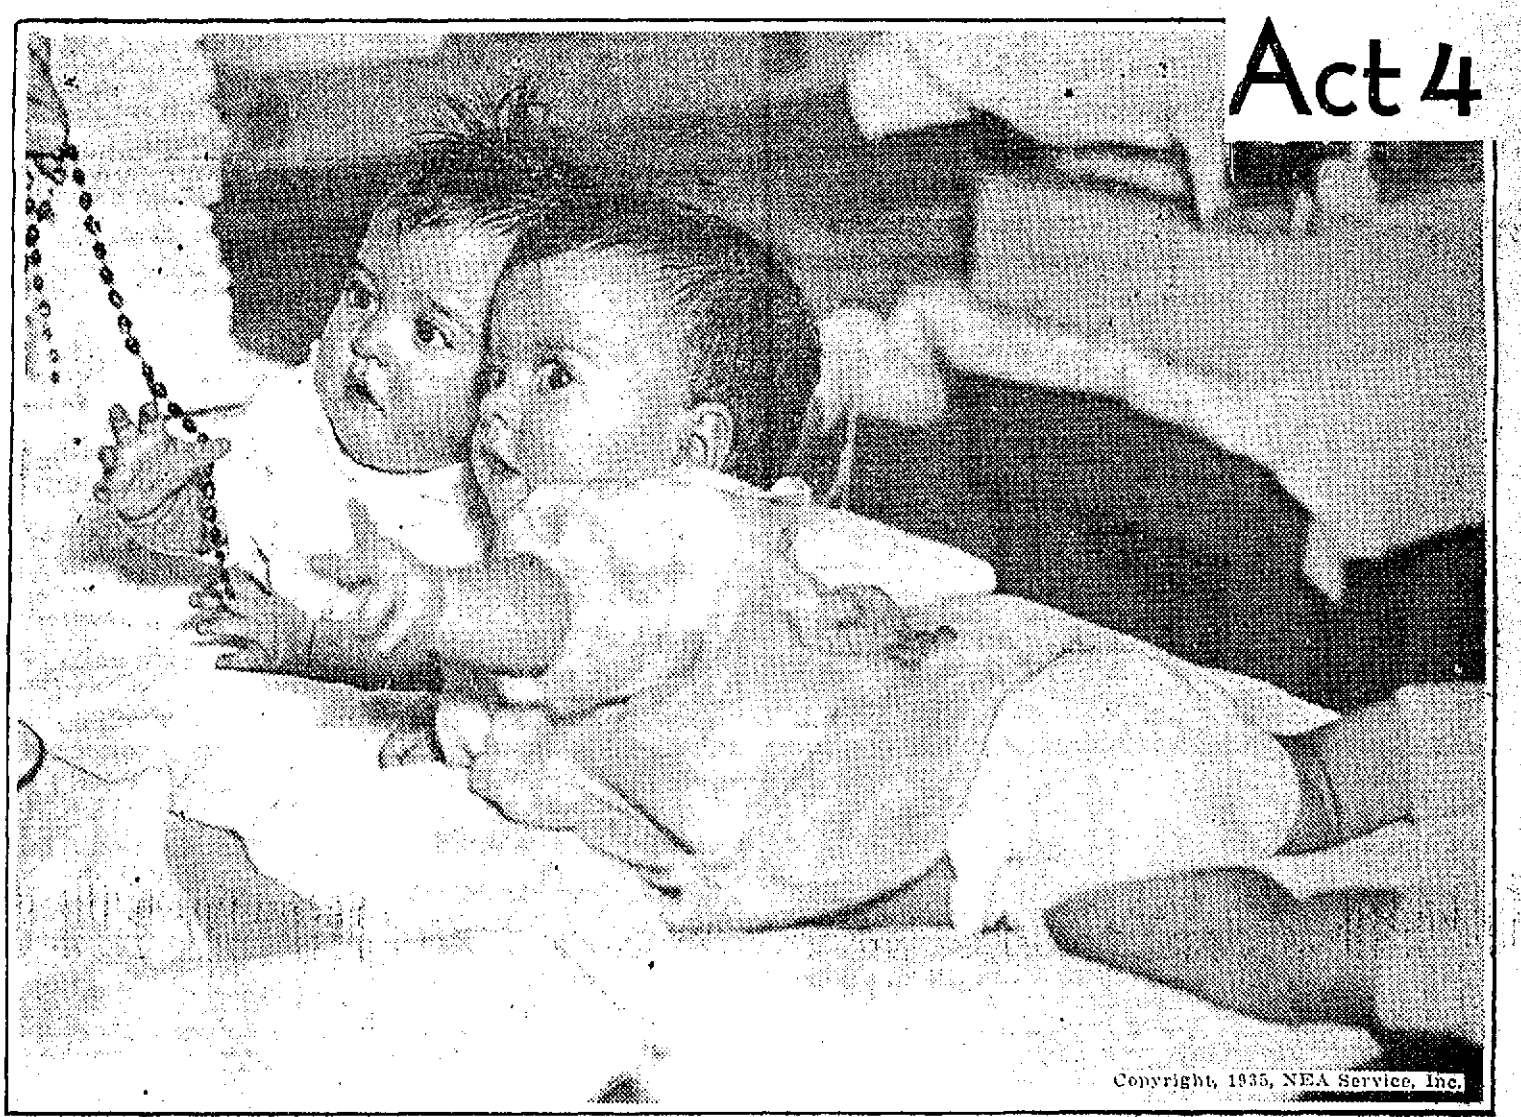

Act 1

Act 3

Act 4

Bright-eyed and Bib-ulous—Bring on Morning Milk!

In their best bibs and tuckers—well, in their best new bibs, anyway—with their names proudly blazoned on the front of the crisp white surface, the Dionne quintuplets give you a bright good-morning. Note that each little girl has her own idea of how to handle a doll. But each of the five sets of starry eyes is equally bright.

Act 1

YVONNE, left, and CECILE are playing on the table-top as the curtain rises. Suddenly a string of beads falls on the table before them.

CECILE: Well, what in the world's this? I'll certainly have to look into the matter! And I hope you notice how strong I'm getting! Look how I hold myself up in my arm!

YVONNE: (Chewing contentedly on a rattle) Wug! Blug!

Act 2

YVONNE: Why, what have you got there, Cecile? It looks much more interesting to me than this old rattle. I guess I'll take a hand in this little game!

CECILE: Why, they're beads, Yvonne. Haven't you see older people wearing 'em around their necks? Personally, I think they're more fun just to play with. What fun are beads if you just hang 'em around your neck like mother does?

Act 3

CECILE: Well, can you beat that! Who discovered those beads, anyway? I guess I did! But you see who's got 'em now, don't you? Isn't life just like that?

YVONNE: H'mmm! Fascinatingly articulated! I'm impressed by the ingenuity with which the successive little ornaments are perforated and thus suspended on the supporting string! There seems no limit to the things those grownups can devise!

Act 4

BOTH: Hey! Wait a minute! We're not through playing beads just yet! Just when we get all interested in this plaything that dropped in out of nowhere, up and away it goes!

CECILE: Yvonne got her hair all mussed up reaching for it.

YVONNE: And Cecile just about stretched herself out of her dress to hang on to those beads!

BOTH: Oh, well! Here today and gone tomorrow! Guess that's life!

Accuse TVA Critic as Power Lawyer

Norris Asserts Sen. Austin Represents New England Power Association

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A charge that Senator Austin, Republican, Vermont, was engaging in "unethical" practices in opposing a bill to strengthen the Tennessee Valley Authority act because he has several public utilities companies among his law clients was made in the senate Thursday by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska.

Norris declared that Austin should be barred from voting on any measures intended to reduce power rates. He said that one section of the TVA act was "put in for the benefit of the senator's clients."

Norris made his charge after Austin had finished a long speech in which he attacked the TVA and declared that it was exceeding its authority.

Austin replied that Norris' charge was an insult. He said that he had been lawyer for power interests but withdrew from that employment when he learned that he was likely to be elected senator.

Austin referred to a law directory in Norris' desk and said that it would show that his (Austin's) law firm formerly was in the employ of a utility.

Norris read from the directory, emphasizing that it was printed this year. It said that Austin is a member of the firm of Austin and Evans of Burlington, Vt. Among the firm's clients was listed the New England Power association and subsidiaries in Vermont.

Mother—Now, Honeybunch, eat up your rice, like a good boy.

Honeybunch—I don't like rice.

Mother—Well, just pretend you like it.

Honeybunch—No, I'll just pretend to eat it.

Slightly Mistaken

Col. Bluegrass—"Well, he's slightly mistaken, suh. You've got a goatee an' mustache."—Florida Times-Union.

Bankhead Cotton Law to Be Tested

Texas Planter Carries Legal Contest to U. S. Supreme Court

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The supreme court was asked Thursday to declare unconstitutional the Bankhead cotton control act. A petition was filed by Lee Moore a cotton planter of Clint, Texas, who contended the act was not a proper and valid exercise of federal taxing power.

He protested that the act taxed the ginning of cotton produced in excess of a farmer's quota, but did not tax all ginning quotas was illegal; that the taxation was not equal but varied according to different local conditions; and that it was an unconstitutional encroachment on the powers of state.

The Texas and New Orleans railroad refused to accept at Clint cotton owned by Moore who wished to ship it to New Orleans for sale abroad. He asserted he could not only $40 a bale on cotton in this country but could get $60 a bale abroad. The railroad refused to accept the cotton because Moore had not complied with the Bankhead act by paying a ginning tax of $49.335.

Moore asked the federal court at El Paso to issue an order to compel the railroad to accept the shipment.

The district court dismissed the suit and the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals approved that action.

Land Buying for Tenant Slowed Up

Bankhead Purchase Bill Reported Out With New Amendment

WASHINGTON—(AP)—In an effort to meet senate opposition to turning a $1,000,000 fund over to buying homes for farm laborers and tenants, the senate agriculture committee amended the much debated Bankhead farm home bill and reported it out Thursday.

The bill, which a fortnight ago ran into such bitter opposition that it was recommitted, proposed to authorize the Farm Home corporation to issue $1,000,000 in bonds.

Auto Production Highest Since 1929

April Manufacture Is Up 29 Per Cent Over April a Year Ago

NEW YORK—(AP)—Total April production of all American automobile makers was the best for any April in the history of the industry save for 1929, the Automobile Manufacturers Association estimated Thursday.

Output for the month was placed at 177,516, an increase of 29 per cent over March and of 29 per cent over the same month of last year.

On the basis of this estimate, production for the first four months of the year was 1,591,381 units, up 41 per cent over the first four months of 1934. The estimates were based on reports of factory shipments.

Saturday Is PAY DAY for Hope Star Carrier Boys

Hope Star now employs 15 carrier boys. Each boy is his own merchant and should be paid each Saturday when he calls, as he is required to settle each Saturday night in full with the Hope Star for the papers he receives.

Carriers should not be expected to make repeated calls for collections, when the amount is so small, as the large number of deliveries they make, and the amount of time required in collecting from their customers does not permit this.

Hope Star deeply appreciates the patronage of every customer, and hopes they will be willing to make it a point to have the 10 cents ready for the carrier when he makes his first call.

Any failure on the part of the subscriber to pay is a direct loss to the young man. Although the amount is small in each individual case, very many such delays and losses could be a serious matter to the carrier that serves you.
